The UK Controlled Environment Users' Group

Code of Conduct for Ordinary and Commercial Members of the UK CEUG

- UK CEUG encourages open discussion on CE subjects and exchange of information to further the better understanding of operating, maintaining and future development of Controlled Environments for scientific applications.
- All Members automatically agree to be contacted by any CEUG member or commercial sponsor, unless an opt-out has been requested.
- Any Comments, spoken or written, should be helpful without undue commercial bias.
- Responses to questions posted on forum, should be re-posted for the benefit of all members. Any commercially sensitive details can be discussed off- line by agreement of the questioner.
- Open criticism of any particular company, institute or individual is not allowed.
- Advice or recommendations should be as neutral as possible without blatant advertising or comparison to other suppliers or service provider.
- Companies are not expected to reveal company secrets or confidential information about their products.
- Use of the UK CEUG LOGO in any correspondence or publicity material, by any member or sponsor, must be approved, in writing, by the UK CEUG secretary.
- Use of the UK CEUG LOGO does not give or imply any approval or endorsement of any products or services offered by any member. The Executive Committee has the final decision on what is acceptable conduct and what is allowed to be posted on the CEUG Forum.
- Members are expected to uphold the aims and objectives of the UK CEUG and not to act in any way that brings the organisation into disrepute.
- Any breach of these guidelines may result in expulsion from the UK CEUG
- The Executive Committee retains the right to make changes to these guidelines as it seems fit, without notice. A current copy of the guidelines is available of the UK CEUG website.

This document will be reviewed annually at a trustees meeting
